

SIX MONTHLY REPORT ON TPS HEALTH, SAFETY AND THE ENVIRONMENT

PERIOD JANUARY TO JUNE 2007

All TPS are subject to medical check-ups at regular intervals, the frequency being dependant upon the tasks performed on a daily basis i.e. heavy equipment drivers are tested more frequently than sedentary office workers. There have been no reported work related illnesses reported by the Company's Medical Provider over the period.

TPS continues to place strong emphasis on safety in the workplace. During the first six months of 2007 we have introduced Man Cages to assist in working on deck container stacks and thus protecting the workforce from falling from heights. This is a new initiative for Indonesia and it is to be hoped that our example will be followed by others.

There were a number of minor injuries during the period. Five terminal stevedores sustained minor cuts and bruises in the course of their duties and four terminal truck drivers received minor injuries when the terminal bus in which they were travelling overturned as a result of a collision with a terminal truck unit. An outside truck driver fell off his trailer when securing his load on the CFS and was knocked out. All victims were initially treated at the Terminal First Aid Post and where necessary transferred to the port hospital for further observation/treatment.

During the first six months of 2007 there have been no Environmental Incidents within the boundaries of TPS. The monitoring requirements of the TPS Environmental Management plan have been observed and no adverse environmental effects (as defined by the Government of Indonesia) attributable to TPS or its activities have been recorded. TPS Officers noted a serious pollution threat in Kali Perak where vegetable oil from a nearby facility had leaked into the water course. TPS contacted the relevant Authorities and assisted in the clean up operations.
